

Unit 6 – Reflection:

I am happy with how the final unit and module were put together. I overcame a huge obstacle to practically install Linux Kali on my PC, and the outcome was satisfactory. For the final project, I finished my audit chores on my website, which made me feel accomplished and happy.

One feature that jumped out was the chance to communicate with my group members during this module. Working with Wiley, in particular, was enjoyable during this unit; despite being ill, he was quite involved in our seminar work on "The Debate - The Future of the Internet" and made a significant contribution. I sincerely appreciate all of Wiley's efforts and attention, which were crucial to the accomplishment of our group project.

I have learned many priceless skills from this programme that will help me become more resilient, manage my time better, and collaborate more successfully with others. Similar to the previous module, this exercise has given important insights into how to deal with a variety of individuals and negotiate their unique behaviours in the actual world of work.

I am happy with my development when considering my performance and contribution in this module. The course material has been exciting and educational, and it has greatly enhanced my professional network for the future. Undoubtedly, the abilities and information I have acquired will play a crucial role in my capacity to succeed in a hectic and dynamic professional setting.

In summary, I appreciate the chance to enrol in this course and am eager to use the knowledge and abilities I have gained in my future efforts.

To sum up, I'm thrilled with this module's experience. I've learned important information and abilities to help me in my future academic and professional efforts.
