Unit 1 – Reflection:

In the previous module, I gained much knowledge from my tutors, particularly regarding the importance of reflection and tips for enhancing my studies. When I think about how this module connects to the current one, I can see the path I need to take to improve my learning journey and achieve success. I am grateful for the guidance and support I have received and am eager to continue learning and growing academically.

As I advance in my career, I understand that security risk management is a crucial area of knowledge that I need to acquire. Despite having worked in the industry for some time, I still have gaps in my understanding of identifying and analysing security risks, threats, and vulnerabilities in information systems.

To address this, I have decided to pursue further studies in security risk management to solidify my existing knowledge and skills and acquire new ones that will enable me to manage and solve security threats and vulnerabilities more effectively. I am particularly interested in learning about the appropriate methodologies, tools, and techniques used to identify and address security risks and how to apply them effectively in real-world scenarios.

I am excited about the opportunities this learning will bring, and I am confident it will add significant value to my professional career. By acquiring these skills, I will be better equipped to handle the evolving threats and challenges organisations face in today's digital landscape, positioning me to take on more challenging roles.