

Unit 6 – Reflection:

Last week was extremely challenging, but I managed to handle everything that came my way. Between completing various tasks, attending seminars, and submitting assignments, I had a lot on my plate. Despite the added workload, I encountered a significant issue with the App I was working on. It was complicated, but I refused to let it defeat me.

Although I tried reaching out to some of my colleagues for help, I quickly realised that this module lacked collaboration, which was disappointing. However, I didn't let that stop me. Instead, I dedicated myself to investigating and researching until I found the solutions I needed. While complex codes still posed a challenge, I made sure to push myself to understand and implement them as best as I could.

In the end, I accomplished everything I had set out to do. Despite the difficulties, I'm proud of myself for staying focused and determined throughout the week. I'm confident that I'll be able to handle whatever challenges come my way in the future with the same level of skill and determination.