

Unit 3 – Reflection:

This week's studies were truly captivating as we explored the intricate topic of Methodology and Research Methods. One of our most compelling activities was crafting a comprehensive Literature Review and Research Proposal Outline. This task enriched my research in my area of interest and gave me valuable insights into this new field. It was pivotal as I realised that my approach differed significantly from the established frameworks and best practices.

Participating in peer review activities has been particularly engaging and has reinforced my dedication to delivering outstanding work on my chosen topic. This experience has inspired me to dive deeper into my research, and I am eager to contribute meaningfully to the academic discourse in my field.
